In Rutland, over-enthusiastic people used ball cartridges in celebrating Monday, until the police forbade the use of any except blank cartridges. They found where the bullets had penetrated buildings and telephone poles.

A barn on Charles Nesbitt's farm in Brattleboro, filled with hay and corn and some farming implements, was burned to the ground last week. As Mr. Nesbitt was working about the barn Saturday evening his lantern exploded, and in attempting to prevent the horse barn from burning Mr. Nesbitt broke through a flight of stairs and fell, dislocating his right shoulder. The fire loss is about $2,500, partly covered by insurance. The ouse and the barn in which Mr. Nesbitt's accident occurred were saved.
